HE IS STILL FIGHTING.

St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, in North Tarrytown, N. Y., was crowded Sunday evening when the Rev. C. A. McAnney told over again the story of his trouble with some of the members of his congregation.

The minister prayed that the Lord would break the bones of all had men and shatter with His lightning all their bad plans. There were pointed references in the prayer which caused those present to look around for the persons at whom they were aimed, but the objects of the minister's shafts were nearly all absent. One or two of those referred to in the prayer and afterward in the sermon sat through the sermon and listened quietly to the minister.

The congregation of the Second Reformed church, of Tarrytown, is to give a reception this week to a new pastor, and in announcing this event Mr. McAnney took occasion to talk about his own treatment by his congregation, which he claims has been anything but what it should have been. The church was not heated, and in referring to this fact the minister said he hoped something would be done to warm up the "ecclesiastical iceberg."

An election of trustees is to be held on April 1. In announcing the election Mr. McAnney said it would be very much of an April fools' day for some persons. He hoped the people would rise up and do what was right. He wanted no "Miss Nancy" business while this war was on.

Mr. McAnney said he had made himself unpopular because he denounced and exposed sin, but declared he would sleep on a straw pallet in the poor house before he would cease to warn all the sinful that some day they would smoke in hell. The buzzard in flight was the most graceful of birds; still, he fed on carrion. A great many persons, he said, were like the buzzard. They were all smooth and beautiful on the outside, but rough and bad within. The speaker would sooner be like an oyster, which was rough on the outside and dissembling to the eye, but full of sweetness inside and with a pearl besides. The modern Ephraim lied about townspeople and then said the minister told the lies. Some day that man would call for water and there would be none.

The house fly, he said, never bit any one; it was the house fly and the dog fly that did the biting. But the house fly went about making marks on the wall and spoiling things generally. That was the case with many men. The house flies must look out, however, as the devil had lots of good tanglefoot paper, and he'd catch 'em later on.

HIS HAND IN A HORSE'S MOUTH.

A horse which became seized with an unaccountable frenzy is responsible for the condition of Samuel Barr, of Manassas, whose right hand may have to be amputated at St. Timothy's Hospital.

The horse, which is owned by Bernard Makim, bit Barr so severely that the physicians despair of saving his hand.

Barr is an old man, 68 years old. While walking along the street Sunday morning he was asked to back the horse out of an alley. When he attempted to take hold of the bridle the animal dashed at him with a neigh of rage. His eyes gleamed and his mouth was wide open. The old man jumped back, but not in time to save himself, for before he knew what had happened the infuriated beast had his hand between the two rows of wicked-looking teeth.

Still uttering muffled neighs between his clenched teeth the horse began shaking his victim as a dog might shake a rat. A crowd immediately collected about the spot, and somebody ran for a crowbar. With this the horse's teeth were finally prised open, and with his hand bleeding and terribly mangled, Barr sank almost fainting to the ground. Even then the horse's frenzy knew no bounds, and, but for the prompt interference of bystanders, would have trampled upon his unfortunate victim.

At St. Timothy's Hospital the old man's injuries were pronounced serious, and it is scarcely possible that the hand can be saved. Bernard Makim, the owner of the creature, as it has always been considered gentle and kind under all circumstances. Barr is an old soldier, having served during the war in the Twenty-third Pennsylvania Volunteers.—Philadelphia Record.

MEDICINAL.

What Shall I Take?

is the anxious question asked by those who are not feeling well—have no appetite—are out of sorts—have no energy—feel tired out. Perhaps you are feeling sick yourself!

Many medicines are recommended, (in many cases) much money spent in this search for health—and yet it can all be avoided.

Wise people commence at once taking

Brown's

and are soon made well and strong. Nearly every prescription given by physicians for such troubles contains IRON—which some people say they cannot take.

Try Brown's Iron Bitters—it is warranted not to give headache, stain the teeth or cause constipation as all other Iron Medicines do.

Genuine has the crossed Red lines on the wrapper.
